

A Song at Twilight – Old Mill Theatre

Saturday 28 March, 7.30 - 10pm (approx)

Venue: Cnr Mends Street & Mill Point Road, South Perth

Noel Coward's play, A Song at Twilight, is a bittersweet comedy - the story of a cosmopolitan author caught in his declining years between two women, his wife of convenience for twenty years, and one of his former loves. When a past lover arrives bearing questions that pierce the silence of decades, long-buried secrets and unspoken truths emerge. This is a poignant drama of identity, betrayal, regret, and the haunting cost of silence - where sharp wit and tender reflections give way to unexpected confrontations, and every whispered revelation strikes like a thunderclap. Collect your ticket on Enrolment Day or from Melissa in the Pod.
